

Theresa Fogle is the Chief Creative Officer and project development leader for EDGE Communication by Design.

Formerly Senior Design Director with Duke Communications International, (now Penton Media), Theresa has extensive design experience in the consumer and technical publication and corporate identity markets.

Spearheading the creative effort behind the identity and brands development for the Windows business group, her leadership was instrumental in launching both SQL Server and Selling Windows NT Solutions magazines.

Other creative experiences include jaunts with Good Family Magazines and Dark Horse Comics, Inc., and various internal and external marketing agencies.

An accomplished art, advertising and marketing professional, Theresa has directed over 300 photo shoots, commissioned over 200 illustrations as well as conceptualized and executed the cover and editorial content of over 60 magazines.

About T

Theresa and her husband Michael have one son, J.C. who is a college student. And, as important as my professional activities are, sitting on the patio with a glass of wine, enjoying the company of family and friends, just laughing it up and watching the sun go down, well... that's important, too.

Community involvement includes being a member of Foothills Rotary Club and a past Director of its Charitable Foundation. Professionally, she has been a member and Board Director for the Art Director's Club of Denver, and currently belongs to the American Institute of Graphic Arts. ■
